

KEIO MEETS HAWAII SUNDAY

The game between the Keio and Hawaii teams tomorrow should be a dandy. The local team is in good form and is going to try its very best to get even with the Nipponese for the defeat it sustained when last they met.

En Sue is barred from playing with the Hawaii team for some poor reason. It will be remembered that he knocked out a home run in the first game when the Hawaiians met the Keio nine, and that seems a little too strong to the Keio committee, and as a reward for contributing the only home run of the season he will be kept out of the game tomorrow. Captain D. Desha is sorry to lose the services of such a good man, but will endeavor to get a good substitute for En Sue's position at center field. Nothing could please the Japanese committee better than to see En Sue off the Hawaii team Sunday.

Umpires "Ginger" Mayne and Bert Bower will be on deck to hand out decisions to the best of their ability, and as Captain Kanki stated at a banquet a few nights ago that he believed the umpires were doing their best, it shows that the team itself has not much to say against the umpires.

The Hawaii team line-up is up in the air just now, but Manager Dreier will endeavor to make up for the loss of En Sue by putting an extra strong team in the field against the Nipponese.

Raphael will be at the receiving end, with the old warhorse Lota in the box. Dreier will hold down his usual cushion. En Sue was expected to play at second, but this position is now to be filled. Markham will be on third, and the way he shoots the ball down to first is something worth while watching.

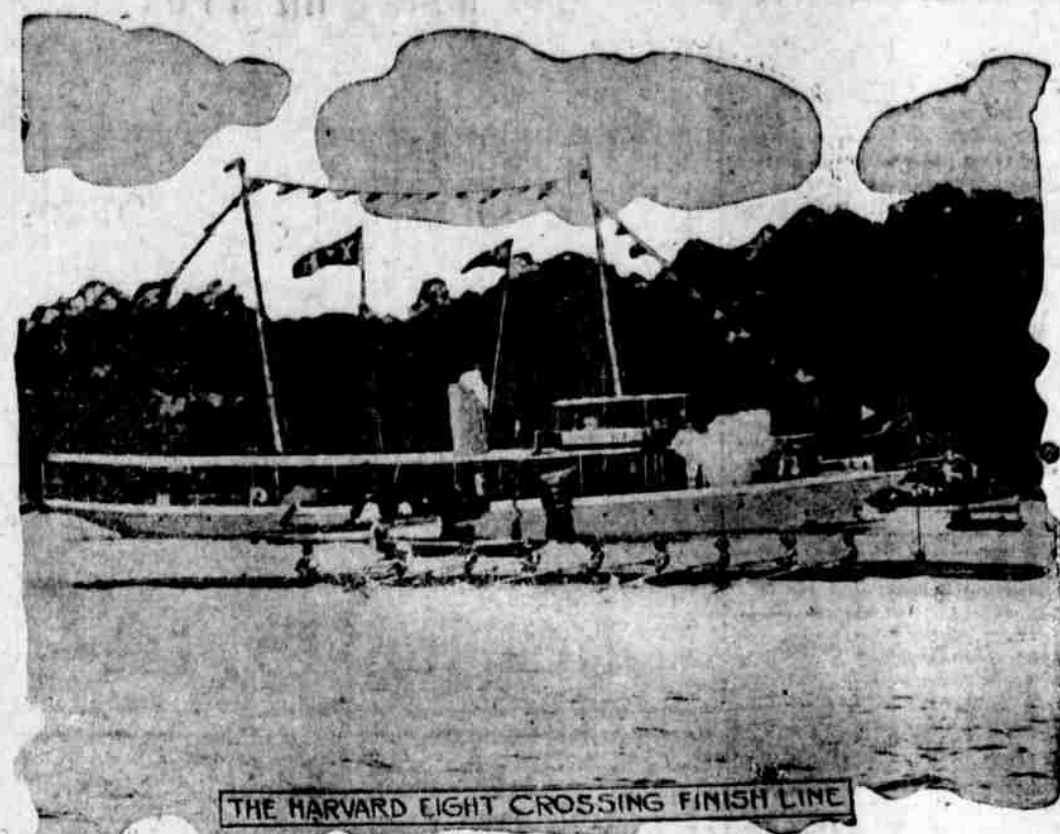

Bailey, who made his first appearance last Sunday, will cover short, and Bill Rice and William Desha are expected to be two of the three outfielders.

The Keio nine will have Sugase in the box and Fukuda at the receiving end. While in Honolulu the "giant" pitcher of the Keios has not done any extra good pitching for some reason.

It was stated yesterday by one of the university men that Sasaki would not play again, but he will be on hand at his usual post today when the game begins.

The first match of the afternoon will be played between the J. A. C. and Portuguese teams. Both of these ag-
